

CITY MATTERS.

Oscar T. Martin, Esq., spent Sunday in Dayton.

Miss Laura Ogden has been called to Chillicothe by the illness of a near relative.

A party of roller-skaters were enjoying themselves in the Central rink Sunday afternoon.

At the meeting of the Republican Central Committee Saturday, Mr. Adam Lehnart resigned as a member from precinct A, Third ward, and Dr. M. F. Welsh was elected in his place.

Rev. Geo. P. Bethel, formerly the secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of this city, is now in the midst of a great revival at McKendree, Clermont county. Fifty conversions are reported so far, and the work continues.

At the presentation of "The Silver King" at the Grand to-night, the prices will be only 50, 35 and 20 cents after the doors open. This will afford every one an opportunity to witness the greatest of modern melodramas.

John Geyer, teamster at Schneider & Bro's brewery, had his hand mangled in some of the machinery early this morning, tearing the flesh of the palm in a bad manner. He was taken to Dr. T. M. Reade's office, where his wound was dressed.

Burglars entered the ticket and freight office at South Solon, on the Ohio Southern railway, five miles from South Charleston, Saturday night, and after going through the ticket case, secured $18 or $20 in money, and left. No tickets missed as yet. Entrance was effected through a window.

Adam Neff, Sen., of Tremont City, died yesterday, February 8, at 2 o'clock. The funeral will be held in the Reformed church to-morrow, Tuesday, at 2 o'clock, after which the remains will be deposited in Tremont city cemetery. The friends are invited to be present.

This morning, on Market street, a horse attached to Conklin & Co.'s delivery wagon, intending to deliver a sockdolager on the nose of a rival horse in the business, got his foot over the shaft. After playing a bass-drum solo on the dash board, he was induced to desist by the payment of half the money, or words to that effect.

Over in Greene county the Republicans are going right on with the primary plan of nominating candidates. In Clark county the Central Committee yields to a popular demand for a change, and a delegate convention will be held. As might have been expected, some people act as though they would immediately emigrate to Greene—for revenue only.

Sunday morning while S. Kemler and his son and daughter of Greene township were driving down Limestone street, the horse, became frightened by the cars. Mr. Kemler got out to hold the horse, but was thrown down and run over. The wheels ran across his chest and head. When picked up he was senseless. He was carried into Dr. Myers's office. No bones broken.

The Dayton Journal says: "Rev. A. W. Coon, editor of the Herald of Gospel Liberty, had a paralytic stroke while in his office Friday afternoon. His first indication of the trouble was inability to move his right hand and arm. He then attempted to go out of his room, but fell, his right side being paralyzed. He was removed to his home, and his condition is considered critical."

Mr. A. J. McBlair, of the Lagonda House, has received an invitation to the marriage of his brother, Mr. Charles Ridgely McBlair, and Miss Florence Preston, daughter of Mr. R. D. Preston, a prominent citizen of Washington, D. C. The ceremony will take place Tuesday evening, February 17, at St. Paul church, Washington, and will be one of the social events of the Capital City this winter. Both bride and groom have been long identified with Washington society, and in consequence, the wedding will be a large one.

"The Silver King," the most fascinating melodrama ever enacted, will be the attraction at the Grand to-night. Notwithstanding the bad weather, there will be a large audience. After the doors open the prices of admission will be 50, 35 and 20 cents.

On Wednesday evening "Her Atonement" will be presented at the Grand Opera House. Though the play has other points of interest, its military features never fail to excite the admiration of an audience, while it is produced with scenic effects of a high order.

"The Little Joker," Miss Carrie Swain's new play, billed for Black's Opera House next Thursday evening, was written by Fred G. Maeder especially for Miss Swain. It belongs to the rollicking class and is a vehicle for the introduction of the songs, dances and spightful gymnastics which have made this little lady so popular. Seats are now on sale at Pierce's.

Spring Election Extra.
A large majority of Republican voters are well satisfied with the action of the Central Committee, Saturday, in arrangements for a convention to nominate city officers. With few exceptions objections come from Democratic sources, who were not expected to be satisfied. When the call for the convention and delegate election is issued by the Executive Committee it will include that for the Springfield township convention, which is always held just before the city convention, the same delegates sitting. Both will be in the evening of the day appointed, February 25. It is the understanding that the wards will consult their own convenience in holding meetings for nomination of ward officers.—Council, Board of Education and Assessors.

It will devote upon the classes who have been foremost in demanding an honest, fair election and those who usually stay away from primaries, to turn out and back their words with actions, when it comes to electing delegates.

Farmers' Club Meeting.
The Mad River Township Union Farmers' Club, organization of which was noted recently in this paper, is holding semi-monthly meetings with great profit; generally well attended. The place of meeting is Oak Grove school-house, and last Wednesday evening there were twenty-five or thirty persons present, in spite of the bad weather. The president, R. P. Love, was in the chair. The first exercise of the evening was reading of papers on "Improvement of the Corn Crop" by Frank Howell and W. F. Drake, after which the topic was exhaustively discussed by the meeting. A. Hiron followed with an essay on "Health and Thrift of Domestic Animals," and Ralph Howell and Mr. McPherson, schoolmaster at Oak Grove, with addresses on "Education," showing conclusively the advantages to the farmer of a liberal education, apart from that absolutely necessary as a mere tiller of the soil. The club meets again at Oak Grove, Wednesday evening, February 18, for which session another good, practical programme has been prepared.

THE BALL IS ROLLING.

What the Chances Are of Having a Good Base Ball Club in Springfield Next Season.

Base ball matters in Springfield are assuming definite shape and it is about settled that if any encouragement is given at all by the citizens and the street railroad company, Springfield will have the best club ever run here. Mr. Harry C. Fisher, who managed the home club last season in such a fine manner, has interested himself in a club for next year and has been kept busy visiting other cities and writing letters to base ball enthusiasts, who are also interested in the organization of an inter-State Association, or the Ohio and Indiana League, as it will probably be called. He has been to Dayton, and there is no doubt a club can be organized there. With Hamilton there is doubt. Parties in Terre Haute, Ft. Wayne, and Evansville, Indiana, are very much enthused on the subject, and it seems a "dead" certainty that the whole scheme will be consummated. As to the local club, Springfield certainly has enough base ball lovers who will back a club. The one great point to be urged is not to put only a very small amount of money into it and get a third-rate club, and then expect to make money. It cannot be done. Springfield is one of the best base ball towns in the State, but the people will have a good club or not support a poor one. Plenty of money should be back the club, and if fine players are secured the first of the season, its success is assured. The street railroad of this city made a real little pile of money last season by carrying persons to and from the grounds, and it should certainly come to the front with a donation of $200 or $250 to start the ball rolling.

Mr. Fisher has been looking into the matter of joining the Southern League, as requested by different parties, and has come to the conclusion that there is nothing in it for Springfield, as the "jumps" from one town to another are too far.

Church and Revival News.

Not less than 100 people attended the first anniversary concert of the Second Lutheran Sunday school, taking the place of the regular service last evening. Many stood during the two hours the exercises were in progress. These were in charge of the veteran organist, P. A. Schmitt, who, with the pastor, Rev. A. E. Wagner, and Ross Mitchell, Vice President of the County Sunday School Union, made brief but pertinent addresses. The secretary, Geo. N. Lupter, read his first annual report, showing an enrollment in the school of 350, and average attendance for the last quarter of 205. The highest on any one Sunday was 234 and lowest 170. The infant school has enrolled 133 scholars and highest attendance was 75. Treasurer Chas. Best reported total collections for the quarter, $91, and balance of $35 now in the treasury. At close of the fourth quarter there were 34 cents balance.

Meetings continue in the Central M. E. church with such increasing interest that this week they will be held in the main audience room. Last evening seven converts joined the church on probation making a total of thirty-five who have united in that manner since the revival began.

A wonderful revival, with a large number of conversions, is in progress at the North street A. M. E. church. Meetings are held every Sunday morning at 6 o'clock, and yesterday morning seventy-five persons were present, with many at the mourners' bench. Meetings will be continued in the Congregational church at this evening. There is a growing interest in these services, and several hopeful conversions are reported, while many others are thoughtful on the subject of their soul's salvation. The public is invited.

Police and Patrol Business.

Saturday was the busiest day the patrol wagon has had in months. Between eleven o'clock and midnight nine calls were answered, most of them for long runs. James Kelly, whose race in the forenoon has been described, was captured in the evening and gave bail for his appearance.

Two runs were made up on the Hill for Jenkins Hendricks, a rascally colored man who goes by the name of Captain Jinks, and he was loaded in on the second one. (Geo. Bennett, the Lagonda avenue saloon keeper, was the cause of one run. He waited for his maternal reflection, vulgarly called breakfast, until 9 a. m., and as the women folks refused even at that late hour to arise and get it for him he attempted a little persuasion of a forcible kind. No arrest.

Ed. McDermott and Jack Gaffney were wagoned on the serious charge of breaking open two loaded freight cars in the Ohio Southern yards near East street. The first contained only starch, for which they had no use. The other was loaded with tobacco, whisky and other creature comforts, as they regard them. The railroad men allege that when they caught the alleged thieves they found some of the tobacco on them, and that they had tools and buckets for tapping the barrels of liquor. Of course the charge is denied.

The Cincinnati papers of Thursday reported the stealing of a horse and wagon from a party there, by two youths named Kelly and Odell. Today officer Wilson came across two young men with a wagon, all closely answering the description of the thieves, and took them to the Chief, who, on hearing their story, set both at liberty again.

Go to Morrow's for Smelts.

A lady named Fleming, living on Monroe street, fell down on the slippery pavement Saturday night and dislocated her right hip and sustained several bad bruises. She was carried home, where Drs. Batterson & Welsh rendered surgical attention.

The Republican city convention, on the basis agreed upon, will consist of 300 delegates. A candidate would have a good time "setting up" a body of men like that, or even a majority of it.

TROUBLE BETWEEN PARTNERS.

Trouble Between Partners.

Sometime ago a man named Peacock came here from Zanesville and began business with Ed. Smith, son of A. B. Smith, manufacturing a patent roller chair. Smith putting in his capital against Peacock's patent. Recently Ed. Smith sold out to his brother William, who not very long after furnished some funds to Peacock, who specially needed them in another direction, taking the patent on a bill of sale. Peacock has also a patent lifting-jack which he is making or about to make at Zanesville, and, it is supposed, wanted to combine that business with the chair-making, and to get possession of the latter again. According to the account he came here with a third party who interviewed Smith, endeavoring to get hold of the bill of sale, saying he wanted to see the form, etc. Finally Smith made a copy, in pencil, and let the new man have it Saturday night, but when asked to return it the latter took to his heels and ran. Smith followed and had him down when Peacock showed up and pulled him off. Smith gave chase and again downed his man, who passed the paper to Peacock, but before he could get away Smith grabbed him and held on to both. Just then Inspector Boyd came up and took all hands in charge. Explanations followed. An attorney was called, who said the possession of the copy of the bill of sale would do nobody good or harm either, and the matter dropped. It created quite a sensation for a time and drew a big crowd on West Main street.

In Common Pleas Court.

Criminal business for the present term of court began this morning, and the first case called was that of Hoshia D'Arbino, the very versatile and lingual colored youth who robbed Thomas Whitridge, near South Charleston, of grain, etc. He pleaded guilty and in plain English was sentenced to the penitentiary for two years.

Ed. Balentine changed his plea to guilty of violation of the liquor laws, was sentenced to pay a fine of $25 and costs and to be confined in jail five days. The "time" part was suspended for a day or two to give defendant a chance to raise money and discharge the fine, as he stands committed until it is paid.

The docket was called and arrangements made for trials tomorrow and Wednesday. The deeds and Brennan burglary case coming up before a jury Tuesday.

Motion for new trial in the damage suit of the Champion Cuff and Ice Co. vs. P. C. & St. L. R. Co., in which verdict was for defendants, was tried by plaintiff's attorney, Pringle and Johnson, today. It is on the usual grounds of error, misconduct of jury, newly discovered evidence, etc.

Considerable amusement was afforded the residents of North Factory street near the bridge, yesterday morning, when about thirty of the students attempted to climb the approach to the bridge on the north side of the creek. First one man would get within about ten feet of the top and suddenly his feet would fly to his head, and away he would go to the bottom. After all the students had tried this one of them who wore woolen socks pulled off his boots and swore he would "get there or die." The result was that he died. Then the crowd formed in a line and attempted to "boost" each other up, but about the time the first man saw the top of one of the others would slip, and the whole line would fall. This was continued for about one hour, at the end of which time there was not a pair of pants, coat or vest, but had a tear in it. The boys finally gave it up, and after going back to college and changing their clothing came to town by way of Market street.

Mr. A. D. Ross, the gentleman from Fulton, New York, who has leased the steel works of Whiteley, Fessler, & Kelly, for the manufacture of paper mill machinery, gave out a contract this morning for the erection of a brick foundry 52x108 feet on the ground adjoining the steel works. The foundry will be modeled after the one recently built by the Superior Drill Company, and will cost $2,500. Mr. Ross will probably go East this week to make arrangements for the removal of his factory to this place. If the weather is favorable he expects to start up with a force of about one hundred men by the first of March.

Some time ago it was stated in these columns that Messrs. Edward and Charles Hotsenpiller contemplated the purchase of the Magnetic Springs at Richmond, Union county, Ohio. Mr. Ed. Hotsenpiller has just returned from the Springs and reports that the purchase has been consummated, and that he and his brother will take charge immediately. The Magnetic Springs at this point are among the most popular in the country and with such men at the head of the hotel and cottages, it will undoubtedly be a big success.

The men on an I. B. & W. train passing Laura, a small station near Troy, Saturday, saw the dead body of a woman lying beside the track. It was that of an aged colored woman known as Aunt Sallie White, who had died of diphtheria and exposure.

It is reported that Horace Grim attempted suicide by taking poison Saturday night. Two or three doctors and prompt use of remedies saved his life. He says somebody gave him the dose and denies an attempt at suicide. He is dissipated and has trouble with his wife.

This morning about 11 o'clock a prisoner named Jim Quinn escaped from the station house. The door leading to the corridors had been left unlocked by the "safety" man, who was carrying in coal, and Quinn, seeing his chance, pushed the door open and escaped.

Two newboys, one white and one colored, got into a dispute this morning in the C. C. C. & I. depot. They were put out and then continued the fight in the Arcade. They were finally separated and no arrests were made.

WINTER BIRDS.

The Haunts and Habits of Several Snow-Loving Species.

The red-polls and the goldfinches often travel together, or at least are often to be found feeding in company; and as they resemble each other a good deal in size, general appearance, any ways, the casual observer is very likely not to discriminate between them. Only the summer before the time of which I speak I had spent a vacation at Mount Wausatch, and a resident of Princeton, noticing my attention to the birds (a taste so peculiar is not easily concealed), had one day sought an interview with me to inquire whether the "yellow-bird" did not remain in Massachusetts through the winter. I explained that we had two birds which commonly went by that name, and asked whether he meant the one with a black forehead and black wings and tail. Yes, he said, that was the one. I assured him of course, that this bird, the goldfinch, did stay with us all the year around, and that whoever had informed him to the contrary must have understood him to be speaking about the golden warbler. He expressed his gratification, but declared that he had really entertained no doubt of the fact. This bird, he said, he had seen on the mountain when he had been cutting wood there in midwinter. At such times, he added, they were very tame, and would come about his feet to pick up crumbs while he was eating his dinner. Then he went on to tell me that at that season of the year their plumage took on more or less of a reddish tinge; he had seen in the same flock some with no trace of red, others that were slightly touched with it, and others still of a really bright color. At this I had nothing to say, save that his red birds, whatever else they were, could not have been goldfinches. But next winter, when I saw the "yellow-birds" and the red-poll linnets feeding together in Commonwealth avenue I thought at once of my Wausatch friend. Here was the very scene he had so faithfully described. Some of the flock, with no red at all, some with red crowns, and a few with bright carmine crowns and breasts. They remained all winter, and no doubt thought the farmers of Boston a very good and wise set to cultivate the evening primrose so extensively. This plant, like the snowberry, is an ungraceful aspect, yet it has sweet and beautiful blossoms, and as an herb-bearing seed is in the front rank. I doubt whether we have any that surpass it, the birds being judges.

Many a student of the red-poll's fearlessness and ready reconciliation to captivity, as well as of their constancy to each other. I have myself stood still in the midst of a flock until they were feeding around my feet so closely that it looked as though they would catch one or two of them. Why? Well, possibly for no worse a reason than this, that these are the lands of their fathers. Other birds, it may be, have grown discouraged, and one after another ceased to come back to their native shores as the rigors of the climate have increased; but these little patriots are still faithful. Spitzbergen is home, and every spring they make the long and dangerous passage to it. All praise to them!

If any be ready to call this an over-refinement, deeming it incredible that beings so small and lowly should come to the human sentiment of virtue, let such not be too hasty with their dissent. Surely they may in reason wait till they can point to at least one country where the men are as universally faithful to their wives and children as the birds are to theirs.

The red-poll linnet, as I have said, are irregular visitors in this region; several years may pass, and not one be seen; but the goldfinch we have with us always. Easily recognized as he is, there are many well-educated New Englanders, I fear, who do not know him, even by sight; yet when that distinguished ornithologist, the Duke of Argyll, comes to publish his impressions of this country, he avers that he has been hardly more interested in the "glories of Niagara" than in this same little yellow-bird, which he saw for the first time while looking from his hotel window at the great cataract.

"A goldfinch, indeed!" he exclaimed. Such a tribute as this from the pen of a British nobleman ought to give Ascalagus tristis immediate entrance into the very best of American society.—February Atlantic.

A writer in the Philadelphia North American has something to say of the "robust belle." As robust as possible is the appearance of the current belle as she walks in the avenue. Cold air and high pedestal shoes, her dress, and the gait now assumed by the girl of style has nothing mingling about it, but is composed of free, graceful strides. She aims to look natural. Yellow hair is despised, and there are said to be instances wherein nature, having given a golden hue, a dyeing of brown has obliterated the color which only a year ago was considered an emblem of feminine self-satisfaction. Her personal coquetry of embellishment is sometimes offset by the enormous St. Bernard dog, or her pet, or her maid, that she leads, or is led by, as if by the brute takes a notion to pull back or ahead. One of her newest likings is for the Russian bath, which has become so fashionable to her sex that the whole forenoon is set apart for them in most of the large bathings, establishments. The goddess of cleanliness is no new doctrine for our girls of money and leisure, but they are fresh converts to the doctrine that it can be best and most pleasantly practiced by the steaming and the rubbing of the Russian process. There is understood to be some gossipishness about appearing in a company of twenty to 100 women almost entirely nude; but obedience to decrees of fashion becomes instinctive. It is a matter of usage. Why the other night in a street-car on the way to a theatre the unmistakably genuine blush of a young woman, because the heat of the dress, accidentally rose to the tops of her cheeks, made me pity the sensitive creature; and half an hour later she skipped into my vision into the front row of a stagerful of burlesquers, with no skirts at all. I suppose she did not care more shameless now than hypocritical before.

Gentle Accomplishment.

How sweetly patient and calm are gentle manners! Courtesy is often finest when negative; when, instead of seeking to entertain others, we let them entertain us. It is a small thing to be silent, and it is often the kindest thing we can do for a man to let him talk. Gentle respectivity puts the shyest and most timid man at ease and at his best, and to do that is a finer pleasure than detailing one's own notions and experiences in the most elegant and happy periods. Do not be in a hurry. Emerson says "Hurry is for slaves." Ah! the slaves who are bought and sold in the market-place do not hurry. It is the greedy man, who is free to get and to keep all that he can lay his hands upon, who hurries. "I do not like to go North, because the men there are all in such a mighty hurry they cannot be civil," a Southern man once said before me. I am not sure that a finer sense of the sweet kindness that is one of the springs of gentle manners would not have softened this criticism, for the sake of the Northern woman, alone among strangers, who listened to him; but to a critic the criticism is suggestive. No doubt the great prosperity of the North may be partly owing to the push and energy necessary to live in it, and developed by the rigor of its Arctic winters; but there is a hurry which is mere clatter and noise. This sort of hurry never accompanies the great undertakings of strong men, but it is characteristic of small minds and weak nerves. It is rarely graceful or gracious, and always robs courtesy of its finest charms.—Christian Union.
